The Crown Of The West: A Private Shippy Ranch Estate Escape

Tucked beneath the Capitan Mountains of New Mexico—where the wind still carries the whispers of old legends—lies Shippy Ranch, a place where the spirit of the American West still rides strong.

For five days and four nights, this land becomes yours.

Your journey begins with a private plane departure from Falcon Field in Mesa, Arizona, lifting away from the modern world and flying toward a ranch shaped by heritage, hard work, and respect for the land. As desert gives way to timbered slopes and open grasslands, time begins to slow.

You arrive at Shippy Ranch—where clear mountain springs rise from the Capitan Mountains, vast pastures stretch to the horizon, and generations of wildlife have moved through these canyons long before fences marked the land. You choose your ranch vehicle and settle into private cabins designed for comfort without compromise.

As evening falls, dinner is served beneath warm light and heavy beams inside one of the ranch's best-kept secrets: the Lost Highway Saloon. A private gathering place where stories are traded, music fills the room, and nights stretch long after the fire burns low. Over the years, it has quietly welcomed rock stars, Hollywood icons, and close friends alike—drawn not by spotlight, but by freedom.

That evening, each guest is fitted with a custom cowboy hat, handcrafted by master hat maker Clint Herring—built to be worn, weathered, and remembered.

Day two draws you into history with a private tour of Lincoln, New Mexico, guided by local historian Amy Gauthier. You'll walk the ground of the Lincoln County War of 1878 and the legend of Billy the Kid, followed by lunch and a private gin tasting at the Ellis House.

Day three is ranch life at its finest: horseback riding, canyon hikes, target shooting with ranch cowboys, and a 4x4 tour across thousands of acres, ending at a hidden pine-country hideout with charcuterie and cocktails. That night, a professional pit boss prepares dinner as the saloon comes alive once more.

Day four features a wine tasting in the legendary party blind, surrounded by a native elk herd that has roamed this land since the 1950s, followed by dinner and live music by campfire beneath a sky unchanged since frontier days.

Before returning home by private plane, take photos with the elk, proof you stood here, where the West is still wild, but never wasted.
